

Band Biography

Root 150 is a rock band based in Amesbury, Massachusetts and active on the local music scene since 2011. The band plays a wide variety of music ranging from classic rock from the 60s and 70s through contemporary hits from the 2000s. Their high-energy sets are sure to get any crowd up and moving to the music.

Root 150 has experience playing every sort of stage, from small clubs to large outdoor festivals. They have played legendary venues such as the Middle East (Downstairs) in Cambridge, Massachusetts—named by Rolling Stone magazine as one of the twenty best clubs in America for live music—as well as shows to sold-out audiences at the Hard Rock Cafe in Boston. Root 150 headlined the Amesbury Days Fourth of July celebrations in 2012 and 2013 and played the Sixth Annual Brew Fest in 2012, all three shows with crowds numbering in the thousands, but they are just as comfortable at private parties and more intimate gatherings. The band and their music have recently been profiled by online radio station Our City Radio of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, and their songs are currently in daily rotation on Boston Rock Radio.

“Top 5” bands on the local charts for rock music.

--ReverbNation.com
(As of May 4, 2015)

“[I]t seems that the members of Root 150 have quickly molded into one cohesive unit. You can hear it when you speak to them and when you listen to their music. They are super cool, humble guys with no egos. Their music is Hard Rock with a deeper sound that has the feel of Alice In Chains or Stone Temple Pilots, though they are most definitely their own band.”
